

NO MONEY TRUST, SAYS MORGAN

Declares It Impossible With Bang of His Fist.

OPPOSES ONE-HAND CONTROL

President Llewellyn C. Morgan, 52, of New York, today gave five views before the Federal Reserve board on the one-hand control of money, which he opposed. He declared that the Federal Reserve bank should not be allowed to issue money, but that it should be allowed to issue bonds, which he said would be a more effective way of controlling the money supply.
